FOREWORD

Welcome to the 2024 CIOB Awards, celebrating the top construction managers and industry leaders.

When I became president of the CIOB in June last year, I called on construction professionals to have the confidence in their skill and training to collaborate constructively, and to work together to challenge the status quo. While many of these awards are a recognition of the brilliant individuals themselves, they also celebrate the wonderful colleagues, friends and family members that support them in their work.

These awards celebrate our industry's commitment to quality and safety, environmental sustainability, the closure of the skills gap and, above all, a commitment to modern professionalism.

The diversity of individuals and projects put forward for these awards highlight the achievements made in promoting Equality Diversity and Inclusion within the sector, and it is especially exciting to see the number of female finalists in our Rising Star category, challenging the outside perspective that our sector is male, pale and stale. However, we also know that this work is not yet complete, and there is yet more to be done here.

This year has been marked with a number of wins, with the #PPEthatfits campaign driving awareness around the lack of inclusive PPE in construction. The commitment from the Considerate Constructors Scheme (CCS) to support mandatory provision is a wonderful example of how collaborative working, supported by facts, can result in practical outcomes that will benefit the sector as a whole.

This past year has also been marked by numerous changes within our sector, including the introduction of the Building Safety Act 2022 and the Building Safety Regulator, along with the introduction of new roles relating to fire and structural safety. Our industry, led by our members, is continuing to adapt to the new requirements, forging a safer future for us all.

We were disappointed to postpone the awards from October, but this has given us the opportunity to celebrate more of the remarkable achievements of the people who make construction great and know this has resulted in a stronger awards.

I wish all contestants the best of luck, and all attendees a wonderful evening.

PRESIDENT'S AWARD

The CIOB President's Award is given in recognition of an individual who has made a significant impact on the construction industry.

The recipient of this year's award, Paul Morrell OBE, has had a profound impact on the industry, through his professional skill and understanding of the reality of business combined, with his long-standing commitment to improving performance and raising standards.

Paul was appointed as the Government's first Chief Construction Adviser in 2009 and continues today to promote change within both government and industrial training boards for the critical need for construction product testing to save lives.

Aligning with the values and objectives of the CIOB, Paul is a Client Champion of the CIOB; he believes the need for modern professionalism in construction, and the power of collaboration to challenge. Paul is a deserving and worthy winner of the CIOB President's Award, and we are delighted to recognise Paul's hard work, commitment, and passion for the built environment.
